Indigenous Peoples and Modernity: Culture, Rights and Development in a Globalizing World

COURSE DESIGNATOR SDNY 3020 LANGUAGE OF INSTRUCTION English
NUMBER OF CREDITS 3

COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course explores the implications of modernity for Indigenous peoples of the planet, in particular the impact of colonization, the contribution of rights frameworks in enhancing the wellbeing of Indigenous peoples, and approaches to development for non-urban Indigenous communities. Each week, the topic is introduced with an overview of key concepts and theories, which are then applied and illustrated through the case study of Aboriginal Australia, the oldest living culture on the planet. Students undertake their own research into the condition of Native Americans and compare the two case studies.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
The objectives of this course are firstly to develop an understanding of the major factors shaping contemporary life for Indigenous peoples seeking to hold onto a culturally specific way of life, in particular the tension between the normalizing policies of Governments based on economic efficiency and the desire amongst many Indigenous peoples for an alternative modernity which defies such parameters. Secondly, the course aims to show how global institutions, networks and flows provide both new opportunities, and challenges for Indigenous peoples in respect of these aspirations.

LEARNING OUTCOMES
By the end of this course, students will be able to:
• Describe the main issues facing Indigenous peoples, and Aboriginal Australians in particular, as they seek to maintain the integrity of their culture and tradition in the context of a culturally and economically dominant non-Indigenous society.
• Critically examine the concept of modernity as it impacts on Indigenous peoples.
• Evaluate the impact of globalization on the contemporary existence and aspirations of Indigenous peoples, and Aboriginal Australians in particular.

METHODOLOGY
This course uses a blend of classroom, experiential, and online learning strategies. The focus of the classroom component is on developing an understanding of key concepts, theories and frameworks through a lecture and student constructed activities. The experiential component explores sites of significance to Aboriginal people in the Sydney area. The significance may be cultural, historical, or political. The online component involves a set of activities to reflect on the experiential components, and research and collaborate on a group project.

GRADING

CAPA PROGRAM AND INSTRUCTOR POLICY
The faculty expects from its students a high level of responsibility and academic honesty. Because the value of an academic course depends upon the absolute integrity of the work done by the student, it is imperative that a student demonstrate a high standard of individual honor in his or her scholastic work and class behavior. This means to gain full attendance you must attend all classes, you must not be late (unless with a valid reason) and you must be respectful of the professor and of other students by not talking/whispering in class when others are talking or presenting. Persistent lateness or lack of attention in class, i.e., reading materials other than the work assigned, may result in a low or zero grade for participation, and possible referral to the CAO. No electronic equipment will be used in class, including laptops, phones, ipods, cell phones, etc, unless you have written permission from the Chief Academic Officer prior to the course. If you are caught using any electronic equipment, you may receive a zero grade for participation.

Plagiarism will be dealt with very seriously, and will be referred to the Chief Academic Officer in London. You may receive an F for the course. If all work is not submitted by the end of the program, you will receive an F for the course.

CLASS PARTICIPATION AND ATTENDANCE
Attendance at all classes is mandated by CAPA; students who miss a class without permission from CAPA’s Chief Academic Officer will have their grade for the course lowered. Informed participation is expected in every class, so students must have read the full assignment carefully before coming and be ready to discuss it if called upon. At any meeting there may be a brief, pass-fail two-minute quiz on some utterly obvious fact in the assigned reading. Students will also be asked to complete informal in-class writing assignments on a regular basis, which will require them to demonstrate their familiarity with the assigned materials. Students who repeatedly demonstrate unsatisfactory performance on these quizzes and exercises will be penalized in the participation grade.

<td>The colonization of Australia was founded on the doctrine of ‘terra nullius’ which held that Australia was a land owned in any organized sense by no one and so could therefore be claimed by the colonizers. This construct reflected a Euro-centric understanding and definition of civilization, which led to a gross misunderstanding, and under-estimation of the complexity of Aboriginal society. We build on the foundation concepts of Week 1 as we explore the history of contact between the white man and Aboriginal Australians and look at how Aboriginal identity has been impacted by this history.</td>

As a rights framework intended to shape Government policy, the Declaration has been much debated and poses particular challenges in specific national contexts. Australians. Political representation, self-determination, and constitutional recognition are unresolved areas. At the community and tribal level, a significant challenge is the emergence of a culturally legitimate model of governance. This week we look at both the macro and micro level issues of self-determination.

Reading

Land Rights and the Mabo Decision

Central to Aboriginal Australian identity is connection to tribal and clan ‘country’. This is a spiritual connection, which also embodies a responsibility to care for country that belongs to the tribe, and clans within the tribes. Colonization broke down the physical connection for many communities. The land rights movement of the 1970s, which culminated in the High Court Mabo decision in 1992 followed by the Native Title Act in 1993, restored land rights to traditional Aboriginal owners. This story is often told as a legal case study but is in fact a story of resistance and assertion of identity in the face of a Western concept of modernity. Notwithstanding this breakthrough, current Government policy is seeking to once again break the connection in order to increase economic participation by Aboriginal people. This week we explore the history of the fight for Aboriginal land rights in Australia and the conflict between capitalist economic rationalism predicated on the individual and the communal structure of Aboriginal society. Can the two co-exist? What are the models that might work?

Week 9

Development Alternatives
Building on the discussion in Week 8, this week’s topic looks at current proposals for development in non-urban Aboriginal communities. Jon Altman’s concept of the hybrid economy blending tradition and market economy principles is examined, together with current Government policy. We also look at the impact of mining and the resources boom for Aboriginal communities, and Indigenous organisations promoting Indigenous entrepreneurship.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Art Collection at the Art Gallery of News South Wales (AGNSW)

Week 11
Aboriginal Cultural Expression and Representation
This week we will have a series of guest speakers to talk about Aboriginal cultural expression and representation in film, literature and art.

Week 12
Alternative Modernities and Alternatives to Modernity
We conclude our journey with the group project poster presentations, which will focus on modernity and is implications for and interpretation by Aboriginal Australians. The topic title for this week comes from Arturo Escobar (2008) who argues:
“...social movements (and, in different ways, policy makers and academics studying these actors) must hold in tension three co-existing processes and political projects: alternative development, focused on food security, the satisfaction of basic needs, and the well-being of the population; alternative modernities, building on the countertendencies effected on development interventions by local groups and toward the contestation of global designs; and alternatives to modernity, as a more radical and visionary project of redefining and reconstructing local and regional worlds from the perspective of practices of cultural, economic, and ecological difference, following a network logic and in contexts of power.”
(Escobar 2008:162-163).

PARTICIPATION AND GROUP FACILITATION 15%

Participation is a vital part of your grade. Students are expected to come prepared to class, having completed any set readings, and to participate actively and critically in class discussions and in related online activities. As part of your participation, you will be required to develop in a small group a set of activities for one class in the semester that help you and your fellow students engage in depth with the topic and the particular case study of Aboriginal Australia. Note that this is a mark for participation, NOT attendance (which is compulsory).

GROUP RESEARCH PROJECT AND POSTER PRESENTATION 30%

Length: 1500 words total plus poster
Due: Week 9 (essay) and Week 12 (Poster) in class.
Students will work in small groups of 3-4 on a project, which researches, through the academic literature, a topic or sub-topic covered in the course and compares the story of Aboriginal Australians with that of Native Americans. The project will have two deliverables: an individual research paper of 1500 words and a group poster presentation to be presented in Week 12 in class.

EXPERIENTIAL LEARNING REFLECTION 25%
Length: 500 words x 2
Due: One week after field class.
There will be at least three field classes during the course. Each student is required to choose two field classes and write a 500 word reflection on each to be submitted online within one week of the field class. The reflection should address issues of social justice, globalization or diversity raised by the experience.

FINAL EXAM 30%
Duration: 90 mins
Due: Weeks 11/12, online
The final exam will be conducted online over a period of several days during the last two weeks of classes. It will consist of three essay style questions chosen from a list of five.

Instructions for submitting written work
• Leave a space and a half between lines.
• Double-sided printing is acceptable. You must submit hardcopy – written work will not be accepted by email.
• Leave a wide left hand margin (3cm minimum) for the marker’s comments.
• Number and staple together all pages.
• Ensure your name is clearly written on each essay page.
• Use the Harvard (in text) citation and referencing system.

Make sure you retain a copy of your work at all times in case of lost or misplaced essays.

ATTENDANCE POLICY
Regular attendance and punctuality are mandatory in order to earn full marks. The final grade will take into consideration preparation required for class (i.e. readings) and participation in class discussions. If you miss any meetings without an excused absence from the on-site director, your final grade will be dropped accordingly. In the case of absences, it is the student’s responsibility to find out what information was given in class including any announcements made.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA POLICIES AND PROCEDURES
Academic integrity is essential to a positive teaching and learning environment. All students enrolled in University courses are expected to complete coursework responsibilities with fairness and honesty. Failure to do so by seeking unfair advantage over others or misrepresenting someone else’s work as your own, can result in disciplinary action. The University Student Conduct Code defines scholastic dishonesty as follows:

SCHOLASTIC DISHONESTY
Scholastic dishonesty means plagiarizing; cheating on assignments or examinations; engaging in unauthorized collaboration on academic work; taking, acquiring, or using test materials without faculty permission; submitting false or incomplete records of academic achievement; acting alone or in cooperation with another to falsify records or to obtain dishonestly grades, honors, awards, or professional endorsement; altering forging, or misusing a University academic record; or fabricating or falsifying data, research procedures, or data analysis.

Within this course, a student responsible for scholastic dishonesty can be assigned a penalty up to and including an “F” or “N” for the course. If you have any questions regarding the expectations for a specific assignment or exam, ask.

STUDENT CONDUCT
The University of Minnesota has specific policies concerning student conduct and student needs. This information can be found on the Learning Abroad Center website.
